TRADE LOYALTY.

No words appeal more strongly to the average person than loyalty. We all love to be spoken of as loyal to family, friends, country and to our ideals. We should also include our home city.

There is no doubt of our sincerity in this and we would feel very much offended were it questioned, but is this loyalty always of the right sort; is it intelligent and active or is it sometimes a sentimental and pleasing fancy with which we delude ourselves?

The happiness of the people of a city depends largely on the prosperity of the community as a whole, and this prosperity depends in part upon the amount of money circulating there. The more money the people send away for things they can buy from their own merchants, the poorer the community will become and, conversely, the more they spend at home, the more the place will thrive.

Do those who patronize distant mail order houses ever stop to think of the harm done? If all the good people in Boston, for instance, should ignore the local merchants, and for one year buy all their supplies in Chicago, Buffalo or New York, there would be "For Sale" signs on the city hall, Young's, the public library and the old North church. The same principle applies to all communities.

Patronage of home merchants is the life of a city. These mail order houses by offering attractive(?) premiums with indifferent goods, have drawn from us large amounts of money which, if spent at home, would have helped to pay for schools, paving, lighting and general civic improvement. Outside business houses do not pay any part of our city taxes.

But "business is business," some say. Yes, but business is more than that; it is reciprocity, and it should be apparent to everyone that business dealings with those who are working for the same local interests as ourselves will be far more productive of good, than trading with people who are far away, who buy nothing from us and whose only interest in our community is the amount of money they can get out of it.

Do you recall when times have been hard and these mail order houses have extended you credit to help you over the hard places? Will they? Not in a thousand years—it's money down or no goods. The local merchants are the ones to whom we must then turn for assistance, but how can we do so with good grace or reason unless we support them in prosperous times?

They are alert, intelligent and progressive, and, if given the opportunity, will sell better goods at the same, or lower prices, than the mail order houses can or will deliver them at once—no express charges, no delays, no disappointments.

Let us cease, then, enriching a few people in whom we have no sort of interest, at the cost of lasting injury to our own community. Try supporting our own home business for a time.

Surely, loyalty, in this instance, means spend your money at home.

ONE GOOD BALLINGER STAND.

Secretary Ballinger is credited with having said something savoring of good common sense and justice. It is to the effect that the existing law providing for the location and entry of mineral lands on the public domain is wholly inadequate. This is it:

"By act of congress approved February 11, 1897, public lands containing mineral oils were declared to be placers and were then opened under the general placer mining law. Under that law no valid claim can be located without discovery of mineral. This is satisfactory as to placer mineral, which usually lies on or near the surface, but not as to oil.

"It takes from six months to a year or more to test oil lands and make an actual discovery. The initial expenditure will range from $20,000 to $100,000, and in many instances more than this. A paper location of prospective oil lands, made prior to discovery, is not usually respected by other oil prospectors.

"One prospector erects his derrick and proceeds with work on his claim; another prospector will erect his derrick upon the same claim and proceed with his work also. It is then a contest between the two for the first discovery.

"The law should be amended so as to protect the first bona fide locator and to give him a reasonable time to make his discovery. This recommendation applies only to bona fide occupants or claimants who are in diligent prosecution of work leading to the discovery of oil or gas at the time of any withdrawal of the land under executive direction."

AN IMPORTANT DECISION BY SUPREME COURT

In the case of the Riekey Land and Cattle company against Miller and Lux, a copy of the recent decision by the United States supreme court has been received. The decision is of especial interest and importance in that it re-establishes the sovereignty of states in the matter of water rights in streams that cross state lines. On this account the decision is likely to be the cause of an action by the State of Nevada against the State of California to allow Nevada a portion of the waters of all streams that rise in the mountains of California and flow into Nevada. It is believed that California will not be slow to enact laws governing the water of the interstate streams. According to the United States supreme court decision, the case may be tried either in Nevada or in California, but in either event the case must be tried according to the laws of California, the state in which the water rises. Miller and Lux instituted this suit, owners of a large area of land along the Walker river in Nevada, against the Riekey Land and Cattle company, owners of a large acreage along the same river in California, to determine water rights. The decision says, in effect, that a man using the water of interstate streams in Nevada must have a law of California compelling the citizens of California to let the water flow into Nevada, and a law of Nevada permitting him to take it after it gets there.

VIVE-INCH VEIN OF RICH SILVER STRUCK

GEORGETOWN, Colo., Dec. 2—Charles Lawson, who holds a lease on the Princess of India mine, located on Columbia mountain at the camp of Lawson, Colo., yesterday morning encountered a five-inch streak running 400 ounces in silver to the ton and which also carried a great percentage of copper. The mine adjoins the famous American Sisters mine, owned by John J. White, the Denver attorney, and lies close to the celebrated Joe Reynolds mine. The discovery has occasioned much excitement.

The power plant of the American Sisters, also owned by John J. White, was sold a few days ago to W. E. Renshaw, the millionaire mining man of Idaho Springs. The consideration of the deal has not been made public.
